What is PlurCur?

The resources provide tools which help to clarify, develop and implement plurilingual, intercultural and inclusive whole-school policies in different contexts in ECML member states.

Who is it for?

- Teachers
- Teacher trainers
- Decision-makers in educational policy
- Researchers

Keys for EOL

Languages taught as subjects are not treated in isolation and language and non-language instruction overlap so that all subject teaching is also language teaching. This consistent implementation of content-based language(s) instruction is transferable to all non-language content lessons.

The website contains examples of individual school projects (secondary level) on the ECML website; for example, using drama for multilingualism, creating online stations for autonomous learning by students with the goal of increasing language awareness.

Suggestion for EOL

- Fostering co-operation between different stakeholders
- Implementing a whole school language policy
- Including long-term perspectives in language education policies
